Words are weapons itching it to be used
Every word can change the world for better or worse
But words can turn to a weapon the second they become abused
Words have the power to change the whole universe

Every word you say can change the world for better or worse
Nothing in this world would have changed if it wasn't for words
Words have the power to change the whole universe
More people would still be suffering if it wasn't for words

Nothing in this world would have changed if it wasn't for words
The world's become a better place, all because someone chose to not be silent
More people would still be suffering if it wasn't for words
Don't be silent speak up because you have the power to stop someone violent

The world's become a better place. All because someone chose not to be silent
Every word can turn into a weapon the second there abused
