CHILDREN AND YOUTH WITH IRRITABILITY

Please join the Parent Resource Center (PRC) in welcoming Dr. Jamell White with the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) who will:

- Define what irritability is
- Discuss common themes in irritability
- Identify irritability and co-morbid disorders
- Discuss why it is important to study irritability and describe how irritability is studied at NIMH;
- Identify new treatment for irritability; and
- Share strategies parents can use to respond to irritability.

Dr. Jamell White is a staff clinician for the Neuroscience and Novel Therapeutics Unit (NNT) in the Emotion and Development Branch at the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH). Dr. White received her Ph.D. from the University of Maryland in Human Development and Quantitative Methodology. She also has master's degrees in social work (Catholic University of America) and special education (Johns Hopkins University).

Prior to coming to the NIMH, much of Dr. White's clinical work specialized in working with children, adolescents and adults with Autism Spectrum Disorder and related disorders.

This session is sponsored by the Arlington Public Schools Parent Resource Center.
